1. The Cambodian rebel leader Prince Chantaransri has withdrawn his support from Ho Chi Minh forces and on approximately 22 April 1951 left his jungle camp with 2,000 armed men to surrender to the King of Cambodia. All of the arms carried by his followers had been supplied by Ho Chi Minh. No contact had been made between Chantaransri and the Cambodian Government as of 1 May, but it was expected that a meeting would be arranged within the next few days.*
2. Another 2,000 of Chantaransri's troops, led by a Cambodian priest named Chna Samrek, remained behind in support of Ho Chi Minh forces.
